

PROXYCO

121 Orchard St.
New York, NY 10002

Pablo Gómez Uribe: Not Even One brick will Prevail

Pablo Gómez Uribe is an artist and architect. Since 2008 he has maintained a double residence between Medellín (Colombia) and New York (USA), which allows him to reflect on the nature of construction and destruction in architecture in these two contrasting cities.

From a fictional space, his installations appear as scientific laboratories, constantly testing materials, comparing samples and collecting urban objects in search of a more solid, stable and ideal city, while at the same time pointing at the inevitable truth of deterioration and instability. Gómez Uribe recovers and points out imperfections, recovers them and declare them as artwork.

One Thousand Bricks, 2018
Weathered butter board
Dimensions variable

Proposal for a Crack, 2013
Weathered butter board
50 x 30 in.

Reality Crumbles Representation, 2013
Butter board
Dimensions variable

Room with a View, 2020
Butter board and photography
18 x 11 in.

If You Were a Hammer ..., 2021
Butter board
Dimensions variable