RAINA LEE is a second generation Taiwanese-American artist and writer based in Los Angeles. She received her BA in Sociology from UC Davis followed by an MF in Media and Film Studies from The New School. Working primarily in ceramic glaze and clay, her practice is in conversation with classical ceramics as well as painting. She creates painterly compositions with extreme colors, volcanic textures, crackly finishes only possible through her custom ceramic glazes. She works on a range of forms— classical Chinese and Greek vessels, extruded 3D printed ceramic reliefs, and slab glaze paintings. Her work is influenced by video games, science fiction futurism, and a Southern California immigrant upbringing. She grew up between Taiwan and her parent's pizzeria in Torrance, California.
